Conclusion – The markers of success in TBM

CAPABILITY

#01 – Get started with defining and publishing a list of technology services that support your organization and mature with application and business service hierarchy mapping

#02 – Work with the data you have but put a focus on the process for improving data quality

#03 – Look at a purpose-built tool for TBM rather than rely on spreadsheets to provide sustainability of cost transparency and reporting. Integrate TBM into the wider IT service and performance toolsets

#04 – Build skill sets within the IT organization so as to be able to talk about IT value in ways that are understood by the business

#05 – Perform regular reviews across IT portfolios to test the accuracy of cost transparency and seek to drive insight into optimization opportunities

#06 – Get CIO or CFO sponsorship for your TBM program

5X

more likely to be a TBM Leader if you maintain connection between technology and business goals

5X

more likely to be a TBM Leader by accurate allocation across many services

10X

more likely to be a TBM Leader where you perform what if scenario modelling

The capabilities and objectives that define your TBM goal...

aligned to the practices or habits that drive its proficiency...
